

Notes on Contributors

---

Patrick J. Boner is a lecturer at the Johns Hopkins University. After earning his Ph.D. in History and Philosophy of Science at the University of Cambridge (2007), he received a research fellowship at the Bavarian Academy of Sciences. As a postdoctoral fellow, Patrick organised an international conference at the Johns Hopkins University and edited the papers in the recently published volume, Change and Continuity in Early Modern Cosmology (2011). He has completed a book-length manuscript on early modern cosmology and is currently preparing the first-ever translation of Kepler's De stella nova (1606) in the English language. patrickjboner@jhu.edu

Friederike Boockmann is a former staff member of the Kepler-Kommission at the Bavarian Academy of Sciences. She has taught at the University of Munich, where she received her Ph.D. in Philosophy (1985). She has contributed to the modern editions of Copernicus and Kepler, and her proficiency in palaeography made possible the final volumes of Kepler's Collected Works (1937–2009). She commemorated the sixty-fifth birthday of Volker Bialas in the volume, Miscellanea Kepleriana (2005), which she edited with Daniel A. Di Liscia and Hella Kothmann. boockmann-toepell@gmx.de

Dorian Gieseler Greenbaum studies the history of astrology from the Graeco-Roman and Late Antique periods to the Early Modern period. She received her Ph.D. in 2009 from the Warburg Institute, University of London, with a dissertation entitled 'The Daimon in Hellenistic Astrology: Origins and Influence'. Her publications include Late Classical Astrology: Paulus Alexandrinus and Olympiodorus, with the Scholia of Later Commentators (Reston, VA, 2001); editing (with Charles Burnett) The Winding Courses of the Stars: Essays in Ancient Astrology (Culture and Cosmos double issue, 2007); and, most recently (with Franziska Naether), 'Astrological Implications in the "Lot Oracle" PGM 50' (MHNH, 2011). dorian@goldtel.net

J. Cornelia Linde studied Medieval and Classical Latin Philology and Auxiliary Sciences of History at the universities of Göttingen, Bologna and Freiburg im Breisgau. She holds an M.A. in Cultural and Intellectual History, 1300-1650, from the Warburg Institute, University of London, where she also completed her Ph.D. research. Since October 2009, she is a British Academy Postdoctoral Research Fellow at University College London. c.linde@ucl.ac.uk

---

John Meeks. After teaching for eleven years at Emerson College in England, John Meeks worked as an upper school science teacher in Switzerland. He is now a freelance lecturer and writer. His areas of special interest and research include astronomy, mythology and the history of consciousness as expressed in music, the visual arts and literature. john.monika.meeks@gmail.com